| 1            | Is there at least one employee or an employees’ council to represent the interests of the staff to the management through regular meetings where labour issues are addressed? | Documentation is available which demonstrates that a clearly identified, named employees’ representative(s) or an employees’ council representing the interests of the employees to the management is elected or in exceptional cases nominated by all employees and recognised by the management. The election or nomination takes place in the ongoing year or production period and is communicated to all employees. The employees’ representative(s) shall be aware of his/her/their role and rights and be able to discuss complaints and suggestions with the management. Meetings between employees’ representative(s) and the management occur at accurate frequency. The dialogue taking place in such meetings is duly documented. N/A if the company employs less than 5 employees. | Employees are free to join unions.
When a legal Trade Union exists, and a representative of this Trade Union is available, aware and documentation is available of his/her roles as indicated in GRASP CP 1, 2, 3, 4, 10; the auditor shall consider this.
If no representative of the trade Union can take the different roles, then a representative must be elected by the workers in a procedure as indicated in the Compliance Criteria of this control points.
The employees representative cannot be any of the persons defined as employer in the Kenyan law: This is: “employer” means any person, public body, firm, corporation or company who or which has entered into a contract of service to employ any individual and includes the agent, foreman, manager or factor of such person, public body, firm, corporation or company. Labour Relations Act No. 14 2007 Revision 2012 Chapter 226, 2
The election or appointment must be done solely by the workers without interference of the management.
If the workers do not want to participate in the election process or there is not candidates to the post, then an alternative process must be used.
If the farm has in place a staff welfare committee and workers different from those defined as employer exist in the committee, then these workers should express their agreement to be appointed by the worker as their GRASP representative. This appointment and acceptance must be documented.
Only as a last resource:
• if the workers do not want to participate in the election |

• or there are no candidates,
• or the welfare committee workers do not accept the appointment, then the management could appoint a worker (which is not, in any means, related to management, as the GRASP representative. This must be documented and follow the indications and requirements of CP1.
The current practice in Kenyan farms both big and small is to have in place a staff welfare where they appoint a chairperson amongst themselves. The staff welfare is used as a channel to represent the interested of the staff to the management.

| 2 | Is there a complaint and suggestion procedure available and implemented in the company through which employees can make a complaint or suggestion? | A complaint and suggestion procedure appropriate to the size of the company exists. The employees are regularly informed about its existence, complaints and suggestions can be made without being penalized and are discussed in meetings between the employees’ representative(s) and the management. The procedure specifies a time frame to answer complaints and suggestions and take corrective actions. Complaints, suggestions and follow-up solutions from the last 24 months are documented.
There is an industrial court which deals with all matters regarding employer and employees. There is also an Ombudsman Office that deals with public complaints to administer justice to all.
The general practice in Kenyan farms is to have a complaint and suggestion box present which can be used by employees to air their grievances or give suggestions.
There is normally a committee assigned to open the box, analyse the complaints and handle them. This committee is normally made up of members from HR, staff representative(s) and other members, depending on the company. The complaint and suggestion box is normally opened once a month (or quarterly in some cases) depending on the organisation’s procedures. This box is opened in the presence of all members or minimum two member: one from the management and the other from the workers representative. |
The complaints and suggestions are analyzed by the committee and resolved or handled normally within a set time frame of between a week and a month. The decision is communicated within these set time periods. If the issue needs more time, the same will be communicated so that the complainant or person making the suggestion are aware that it is being handled.

It is well communicated to all staff that there will be no one penalized for raising complaints or suggestions.

Kenyan law provides for the following:

1. No discrimination
   The Constitution of Kenya prohibits discrimination either directly or indirectly against any person on the basis of race, sex, pregnancy, marital status, health status, ethnic or social origin, colour, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, dress, language or birth. Employment Act, with specific reference to employment, states that person's access to any institution, employment or facility, or the enjoyment of any right may not be denied because of person's belief or religion. Anti-union discrimination and discrimination against person with disabilities is also prohibited under the Labour Relations Act and Persons with Disabilities Act 2003 respectively.

The law under the Employment Act, 2007, and the Children Act, defines a child in Kenya as a person below the age of 18 years. The Employment Act, Part VII provides for protection of children including protection from the worst forms of child Labour.

The minimum age for admission to employment

Section 56 prohibits employing a child below 13 years in any form of undertaking. However, it allows employment of children from the ages of 13 to 16 years for light work, and defines those of 16 to 18 as employable. In section 58 and 59, the minimum age for employment in an industrial undertaking is 16, unless he/she is an apprentice under the Industrial Training Act (Cap. 237, Laws of Kenya).

Records of children in the workplace

Section 60 compels a child’s employer to have a register consisting age and date of birth, date of entry into and of leaving the employment and, such other particulars as may be prescribed.

Protection of children from child labour

The law provides for protection from child Labour and armed conflict under The Children Act, No. 8 of 2001, Section 10.

To whom/where individuals can complain about child labour

In case a person considers any child to be employed in any activity which constitutes the worst form of child Labour, section 54 of the Employment Act provides for complaints.

Legal sanctions applicable if compliance is lacking?

Section 64 declares an offence for any person who employs, engages, or uses a child in an industrial undertaking in contravention of the provisions of part VII of the Employment Act.

ACCESS TO COMPULSORY SCHOOL EDUCATION

9. Do the children of employees living on the company’s production/handling sites have access to compulsory school education?

There is documented evidence that children of employees at compulsory schooling age (according to national legislation) living on the company’s production/handling sites have access to compulsory school education, either through provided transport to a public school or through on-site schooling.

Every parent whose child is a Kenyan or resides in Kenya is required by law to ensure that the child attends school regularly. A parent who fails to take his or her child to school as required under the law commits an offence and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred thousand shillings or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Schooling age is between 4 years to 18 years. It’s considered the basic education (Primary to Secondary school).

There must be evidence that the farm has accounted for all kids in school age.

Some sectors in Kenya provide schools for workers children. Some companies give allowances for workers children to go to school.

TIME RECORDING SYSTEM

10. Is there a time recording system that shows working time and overtime on a daily basis for the employees?

There is a time recording system implemented appropriate to the size of the company that makes working hours and overtime transparent for both employees and employer on a daily basis. Working times of the employees during the last 24 months are documented. Records are regularly approved by the employees and accessible for the employees’ representative(s).

No legislations on time recording system but various acceptable form of time recording are adopted by employers.

The practice in Kenya is to have biometric and a book/register where the working hours are recorded.

Auditor will verify that these records can be accessible to the workers.

<td>Workers are free to form and join trade unions of choice.</td>

Registration of a trade union

The process of registering a trade union takes six months and is provided for in sections 12, 13 and 14 of the Labour Relations Act, 2007, Laws of Kenya. After obtaining a certificate from the registrar of trade unions, the trade union may apply for registration within six months if they have:

- Complied with the Labour Relations Act, 2007
- The trade union has adopted a constitution that complies with the requirements of the Labour Relations Act, 2007 and requirements set out in the first schedule
- The trade union has an office and postal addresses within Kenya
- No other trade union is already registered that is sufficiently representative of the whole or substantial proportion of the interests in respect of which the applicants seek registration
- Only members in the sector specified in the union constitution qualify for membership of the trade union
- The name of the trade union is not the same as that of an existing trade union
- The decision to register the trade union was made at a meeting attended by at least fifty members of that trade union
- The trade union is independent of direct or indirect control of any employer or employers association
- The trade union’s sole purpose is to pursue the activities of a trade union.

Membership

Section 32 of Labour Relations Act, 2007, allows for an employee who is above 16 years to enjoy the rights of membership of a trade union. A voting member of a trade union must be one employed in the sector for which the trade union is registered and his/her subscriptions must not be more than 13 weeks in arrears.

The level of unionization of employees is provided for in Appendix C of the Industrial Relations Charter. The charter prohibits persons having authority in their organisation’s to hire, transfer, appraise, suspend, promote reward, discipline and handle grievances, from being included in the union representation.

Therefore, in view of the foregoing, managers cannot form and belong to trade unions. But managers can form a staff association to protect and promote their interests with respect to terms and conditions of or relating to employment.

A staff association will never assume the legal status of a trade union unless it conforms to the requirements of sections 12, 13 and 14 of Labour Relations Act, 2007, Laws of Kenya.

Agency fees to a trade union

Section 49 of The Labour Relations Act, 2007 provides for agency fees payment to a trade union by an employer after effecting deductions from an employee’s salary.

The process of agency fee deductions begins when management is approached by the trade union to submit names of unionisable employees to them in order to identify the employees who have been employed under terms and conditions of a prevailing collective bargaining agreement between the trade union and the employer. Agency fees are paid to a trade union that has a registered recognition agreement with an employer in the industrial court and has requested the minister for Labour requiring the employer bound by the collective agreement to deduct agency fees from the wages of unionisable employees who are not members of the trade union but are employed under terms and conditions of the collective bargaining agreement. The rate of agency fees must not be higher than the normal union subscription fees deducted from union members through a check off system.

When a legal trade Union exist, and a representative of this Trade Union is available, aware and documents to take the roles indicated in GRASP CP 1, 2, 3, 4, 10, this will be considered by the auditor.

If no representative of the trade Union can take the different roles, then a representative must be elected by the workers in a procedure as indicated in the Compliance Criteria of this control points.

The employees representative cannot be any of the persons defined as employee in the Kenyan law: This is: “employer” means any person, public body, firm, corporation or company who or which has entered into a contract of service to employ any individual and includes the agent, foreman, manager or factor of such person, public body, firm, corporation or company. Labour Relations Act No. 14 2007 Revision 2012 Chapter 226, 2

The election or appointment must be done solely by the workers without interference of the management.

If the workers do not want to participate in the election process or there is not candidates to the post, then an alternative process must be done.

If the farm has in place a staff welfare committee and workers different from those defined as employer exist in the committee, then these workers should express their agreement to be appointed by the worker as their GRASP representative. This appointment and acceptance must be documented.

Only as a last resource, if the workers do not want to participate in the election process, or in the appointment process or there are not candidates, or the welfare committee workers do not accept the appointment, then the management could appoint a worker (which is not, in any means, related to management, as the GRASP representative). This must be documented and must follow the indications and requirements of CP1.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 2:

There is an industrial court which deals with all matters regarding employer and employees. There is also an Ombudsman Office that deals with public complaints to administer justice to all. The Ministry of Labour has a mandate over all issues concerning Labour, employment, manpower planning and development.

The general practice in Kenyan farms is to have a complaint and suggestion box present which can be used by employees to air their grievances or give suggestions.

There is normally a committee assigned to open the box, analyse the complaints and handle them. This committee is normally made up of members from HR, staff representative(s) and other members, depending on the company. The complaint and suggestion box is normally opened once a month (or quarterly in some cases) depending on the organisation’s procedures. This box is opened in the presence of all members or minimum two member: one from the management and the other from the workers representative.

The complaints and suggestions are analyzed by the committee and resolved or handled normally within a set time frame of between a week and a month. The decision is communicated within these set time periods. If the issue needs more time, the same will be communicated so that the complainant or person making the suggestion are aware that it is being handled.

It is well communicated to all staff that there will be no one penalized for raising complaints or suggestions.
Control Point Compliance Criteria 3:

Kenya joined the ILO in 1949. As of 4 June 2004, it had ratified 49 ILO Conventions, of which 43 were in force in the country.

Kenyan law provides for the following:

1. No discrimination

   The Constitution of Kenya prohibits discrimination either directly or indirectly against any person on the basis of race, sex, pregnancy, marital status, health status, ethnic or social origin, colour, age, disability, religion, conscience, belief, culture, dress, language or birth. Employment Act, with specific reference to employment, states that person's access to any institution, employment or facility, or the enjoyment of any right may not be denied because of person's belief or religion. The Act further prohibits employer from discrimination against a current or a prospective worker on the basis of race, colour, sex, language, religion, political or other opinion, nationality, ethnic or social origin, disability, pregnancy, mental status or HIV status. Discrimination in the process of recruitment, training, promotion, terms and conditions of employment, termination of employment and other matters related to employment is not allowed. Anti-union discrimination and discrimination against person with disabilities is also prohibited under the Labour Relations Act and Persons with Disabilities Act 2003 respectively. In accordance with Persons with Disabilities Act, no person can deny a person with a disability access to opportunities for suitable employment. A qualified employee with a disability is subject to the same terms and conditions of employment and the same compensation, privileges, benefits, fringe benefits, incentives or allowances as qualified able-bodied employees. An employee with a disability is entitled to exemption from tax on all income accruing from his employment. The National Council for Persons with Disabilities endeavors to ensure the implementation of five percent quota for persons with disabilities in all casual, emergency and contractual positions in employment in the public and private sectors.

2. Minimum age

   The law under the Employment Act, 2007, and the Children Act, defines a child in Kenya as a person below the age of 18 years. The Employment Act, Part VII provides for protection of children including protection from the worst forms of child Labour. Section 56 prohibits employing a child below 13 years to any form of undertaking. However it allows employment of children from the ages of 13 to 16 years for light work and defines those of 16 to 18 as employable. The Act does not clearly define the parameters for this employment. It does not define light work and does not provide protection for children in such employment, but leaves it at the discretion of the minister. In section 58 and 59, the minimum age for employment in an industrial undertaking is 16, unless he/she is an apprentice under the Industrial Training Act (Cap. 237, Laws of Kenya). The law also puts a time limit for a child in an industrial undertaking to between 6.30am to 6.30pm. This minimum age restriction does not apply to employees who belong to the same family as the employer - unless the undertaking is dangerous to the life, health or morals of the persons employed. There is no legal minimum working age in the agricultural and services sectors, or for domestic work. Section 60 compels a child’s employer to have a register consisting of age and date of birth, date of entry into and of leaving the employment and, such other particulars as may be prescribed.

The law provides for protection from child Labour and armed conflict under The Children Act, No. 8 of 2001. Section 10, provides that every child shall be protected from:

- Economic exploitation
- Any work that interferes with his/ her education, or is harmful to the child’s health or physical, mental, spiritual, moral or social development
- Recruitment to hostilities armed conflicts, and where armed conflict occurs

In case a person considers any child to be employed in any activity which constitutes the worst form of child Labour, section 54 of the Employment Act provides for complaints and directs them to the Labour officer or a police officer of the rank of an inspector and above. The Labour officer or a police officer will then either carry out an investigation within seven days of reporting and submit the findings to the minister.

Section 64 declares an offence for any person who employs, engages, or uses a child in an industrial undertaking in contravention of the provisions of part VII of the Employment Act. Such a person will be liable to a fine not exceeding KES 200,000 or to an imprisonment of not more than one year or both.

3. Forced Labour

Under Employment Act, 2007, forced or compulsory Labour is any work or service that a person does under threat of any penalty, or work that a person does involuntarily. A threat in this case includes the loss of one’s rights or privileges. Under section 4 of Employment Act, 2007, no person shall use or assist any other person in recruiting, trafficking or using forced Labour. The law defines forced or compulsory Labour by excluding the work or service that should not be included as forced Labour. A person who contravenes the provisions of this section commits an offence and shall, on conviction be liable to a fine not exceeding KES 500, 000 or to not more than a two-year jail term or to both.

4. Equal pay

In accordance with the Constitution of Kenya, all human being are born equal and are equal before the law. The Constitution recognizes the right to fair remuneration. The Employment Act, 2007 requires every employer to ensure that men and women workers are paid equally for work of equal value. It is also a liable offence to discriminate in remuneration matters.

5. Right to organize and collective bargaining

The process of collective bargaining is not specifically provided for in law, but there are prerequisite conditions, which must be fulfilled before parties may proceed with bargaining process. Such conditions are contained in the Labour Relations Act, No. 14 of 2007. In section 54 of the Labour Relations Act, there is a requirement that the trade union must have legal recognition in law that is duly registered by having a constitutional jurisdiction. All agreements must be reduced to writing and signed by CEO of any employer, national secretary or any representative of employers’ organisation that is party to the agreement (section 59(4)). The agreements become enforceable after registration. In general, collective agreements have a duration span of up to two years before renewal by parties. Collective agreements modify individual contracts. Collective bargaining in Kenya is commonly conducted either on a single establishment or single plant basis or in a multi-employer approach. Section 60 requires that collective agreements be registered with the Industrial Court. Submission of the agreement to the industrial court for registration is done by the employer or employers’ organisation, though submission can be done by a trade union due to failure by the employer. The Industrial Court may object to the registration if the agreement either conflicts with the Act that forms it or any other law, or it does not comply with any guidelines concerning wages, salary and other conditions of employment issued by the minister. The Industrial Court may register a collective agreement within fourteen days of receiving it, unless there is an objection which has been given.

The process of recognizing a trade union is provided for in sections 2 and 54 (1) of the Labour Relations Act, 2007, Laws of Kenya.

To enter into a recognition agreement with the employer, the trade union must have recruited a simple majority of the total number of unionisable employees of that employer. Without a recognition agreement, the employer cannot take cognizance of the union for the purposes of representation of employees of such employer in any capacity on issues of or relating to terms and conditions of employment.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 5:

There are mainly four types of contracts under which you can employ someone and these are:

- A contract for an unspecified period of time: An employment contract which does not specify a fixed period of duration, is considered to be for an unlimited period of time, but can be terminated by notice of either party. However, in the organized sector collective agreements which give workers tenure limit the employers’ ability to discharge and end the employment contract.
- Contract for specified period of time: If the contract is for a definite period of time then the term should be specified. If an employment contract specifies a fixed period of employment, usually three months and above, the contractual relationship is automatically terminated at the end of this period, without being considered a resignation or a dismissal. Under section 39 of the Employment Act, such a contract may be prolonged for a period of service up to one month, if the employee is engaged in any journey.
- Contract for a specific task (piecework employment): This is a kind of contract in which a person is employed for the performance of a specific task (section 9). Once the task is completed then that contract comes to an end.
- Contract for casual employment: The “casual employee” is an individual is paid at the end of every day and who is not engaged for a longer period than twenty-four hours at a time.

An employer shall within two months after the beginning of employment provide the worker with a written statement of the particulars of the main terms of the contract of employment (Employment Act, section 10).

Under the Act tittle :Employment (no 11 of 2007) the following is detailed Employment particulars

A written contract of service specified in section 9 shall state particulars of employment which may, subject to subsection (3), be given in instalments and shall be given not later than two months after the beginning of the employment.

A written contract of service shall state—

- the name, age,
- permanent address and sex of the employee;
- the name of the employer;
- the job description of the employment;
- the date of commencement of the employment;
- the form and duration of the contract; the place of work;
- the hours of work;
- the remuneration, scale or rate of remuneration, the method of calculating that remuneration and details of any other benefits;
- the intervals at which remuneration is paid; and
- The date on which the employee's period of continuous employment began, taking into account any employment with a previous employer which counts towards that period; and
- any other prescribed matter.

The statement required under this section shall also contain particulars, as at a specified date not more than seven days before the statement, or the instalment containing them, is given of:

- any terms and conditions relating to any of the following:
  - entitlement to annual leave, including public holidays, and holiday pay (the particulars given being sufficient to enable the employee’s entitlement, including any entitlement to accrued holiday pay on the termination of employment, to be precisely calculated);
  - incapacity to work due to sickness or injury, including any provision for sick pay; and
  - pensions and pension schemes;
  - the length of notice which the employee is obliged to give and entitled to receive to terminate his contract of employment;
  - where the employment is not intended to be for an indefinite period, the period for which it is expected to continue or, if it is for a fixed term, the date when it is to end;
  - either the place of work or, where the employee is required or permitted to work at various places, an indication of that place of work and of the address of the employer;
  - any collective agreements which directly affect the terms and conditions of the employment including, where the employer is not a party, the person by whom they were made; and
- where the employee is required to work outside Kenya for a period of more than one month:
  - the period for which that employee is to work outside Kenya
  - the currency in which remuneration is to be paid while that employee is working outside Kenya;
  - any additional remuneration payable to the employee, and any benefits due to the employee by reason of the employee working outside Kenya; and
  - any terms and conditions relating to the employee’s return to Kenya.

Where any matter stipulated in subsection (1) changes, the employer shall, in consultation with the employee, revise the contract to reflect the change and notify the employee of the change in writing. The employer shall keep the written particulars prescribed in subsection (1) for a period of five years after the termination of employment. If in any legal proceedings an employer fails to produce a written contract or the written particulars prescribed in subsection (1) the burden of proving or disproving an alleged term of employment stipulated in the contract shall be on the employer.

If the particulars stated above are stated in a written contract which has been supplied to an employee the employer does not have to furnish the employee with the written particulars. If an employee cannot be able to read and understand the terms of this contract, then you are required by the law to explain it to them in a language they can understand.

This is to avoid any confusion which in case of any, you shall be held liable as the employer according to clause 4 of section 9. Oral contracts are permissible; however, an employee must be supplied with a written statement of particulars containing terms listed above.

It is okay to enter into an oral contract of employment because in case of any legal proceedings the burden of proving or disproving an alleged term of employment falls on the employer (section 10 (7)). If an employer fails to produce a contract of employment or written statement of particulars he/she will then fail to prove any term contained therein and the dispute might be decided against him/her.

Assessment dealing with causals hired by agencies will need to check on the conformity of this CP.

For non-national employees, the law require the persons to apply for a permit while they are in their country of origin. Once the permit is approved, the person is able to come to Kenya and in normal circumstances will be able to work for a period of 2 years only, after which the permit needs to be renewed. Under part XI of Employment Act - FOREIGN CONTRACTS OF SERVICE states:

- Form and attestation- A foreign contract of service shall be in the prescribed form, signed by the parties thereto, and shall be attested by a Labour officer.
- Requirement before attestation - A foreign contract of service shall not be attested unless the Labour officer is satisfied:
  g) that the consent of the employee to the contract has been obtained;
  h) of the absence of any fraud, coercion or undue influence, and any mistake of fact, or misrepresentation which might have induced the employee to enter into the contract;
  i) that the contract is in the prescribed form;
  j) that the terms and conditions of employment contained in the contract comply with the provisions of this Act and have been understood by the employee;
  k) that the employee is medically fit for the performance of his duties under the contract; and
  l) That the employee is not bound to serve under any other contract of service during the period provided in the foreign contract.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 6:

Employment Act section 20 states the following:

Itemized pay statement

1. An employer shall give a written statement to an employee at or before the time at which any payment of wages or salary is made to the employee
2. The statement specified in subsection (1) shall contain particulars of
   a. the gross amount of the wages or salary of the employee
   b. the amounts of any variable and subject to section 22, any statutory deductions from that gross amount and the purposes for which they are made; and c. Where different parts of the net amount are paid in different ways, the amount and method of payment of each part-payment.

3. This section shall not apply to a casual employee or an employee engaged on piece-rate or task-rate terms or for any period not exceeding six months.

4. The Minister may exclude any category of employees or employees employed in any sector from the application of this section.

In Kenya, where there are no payslips, there is normally a pay register where the employee signs against the amount paid.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 7:

In accordance with the provisions of the Labour Institutions Act 2007, workers' salaries must at least be equal to the minimum wage, ensuring every worker a decent standard of living consistent with the human dignity. The National Labour Board, a tripartite body, is entrusted with the responsibility to advise the Labour Minister on, inter alia, appointment of wage councils. The wage rates are determined by Wage Councils constituted in accordance with Labour Institutions Act 2007. Wages are determined for agriculture as well as general sector workers by the Agricultural and General Wage Councils constituted under the Labour Institutions Act. A wages order sets the minimum rates of remuneration; specify the types and manner of deductions as well as the maximum amount/percentage of deductions; maximum amount deducted from pay in respect of rations supplied by the employer; regulate task based and piece work; regulate outwork, casual work and contract work; and other related terms on remuneration.

The Labour Institutions Act, No.12 of 2007 provides for Minimum Wages. Part VI of the Act consists of the wages council & the fixing of wages and terms and conditions of service. Labour Institutions, provide for their functions, powers and duties and other matters related to them. This part empowers the Minister of Labour to establish the Wages Councils. Generally there are 2 wages known as a general wages council and an agricultural wages council (Section 43 (1)). This part also constitutes a wages board (Section 43 (2)). The Wage Councils and Boards are empowered to investigate remuneration and terms and conditions of employment in various sectors and report the findings and recommendations to the Minister. Based on the findings the Minister is empowered by the same Legislation after considering the recommendations to make a Wage Order determining the minimum wage and other conditions of employment for employees in any sector and area of the country. The Regulation of Wages Orders (for general and agricultural industry) are then published by Government Gazette (Section 46) setting the Minimum Wages & conditions of employment (Section 47)

An employer who fails to pay statutory minimum wage or provide a worker with conditions of employment as provided under the Wages Order commits an offence. Labour inspector is authorized to monitor & enforce compliance with the Labour Law. Non-compliance with the Employment Act is an offence, punishable by a fine of maximum 100,000 shillings & imprisonment of 2 years.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 8:

The law under the Employment Act, 2007, and the Children Act, defines a child in Kenya as a person below the age of 18 years. The Employment Act, Part VII provides for protection of children including protection from the worst forms of child Labour.

The minimum age for admission to employment

Section 56 prohibits employing a child below 13 years in any form of undertaking. However it allows employment of children from the ages of 13 to 16 years for light work, and defines those of 16 to 18 as employable. The Act does not clearly define the parameters for this employment. This minimum age restriction does not apply to employees who belong to the same family as the employer - unless the undertaking is dangerous to the life, health or morals of the persons employed. There is no legal minimum working age in the agricultural and services sectors, or for domestic work

Records of children in the workplace

Section 60 compels a child's employer to have a register consisting age and date of birth, date of entry into and of leaving the employment and, such other particulars as may be prescribed.

Protection of children from child Labour

The law provides for protection from child Labour and armed conflict under The Children Act, No. 8 of 2001. Section 10, provides that every child shall be protected from:

- Economic exploitation.
- Any work that interferes with his/her education, or is harmful to the child’s health or physical, mental, spiritual, moral or social development.
- Recruitment to hostilities armed conflicts, and where armed conflict occurs.

To whom/where individuals can complain about child Labour

In case a person considers any child to be employed in any activity which constitutes the worst form of child Labour, section 54 of the Employment Act provides for complaints and directs them to the Labour officer or a police officer of the rank of an inspector and above. The Labour officer or a police officer will then carry out an investigation within seven days of reporting and submit the findings to the minister.

Legal sanctions applicable if compliance is lacking?

Section 64 declares an offence for any person who employs, engages, or uses a child in an industrial undertaking in contravention of the provisions of part VII of the Employment Act. Such a person will be liable to a fine not exceeding KES 200,000 or to an imprisonment of not more than one year or both.

Farm should be aware of how many children are living on the farm and their ages.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 9:

Every parent whose child is a Kenyan or resides in Kenya is required by law to ensure that the child attends school regularly. A parent who fails to take his or her child to school as required under the law commits an offence and shall be liable to a fine not exceeding one hundred thousand shillings or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or both.

Schooling age is between 4 years to 18 years. It’s considered the basic education (Primary to Secondary school). There must be evidence that the farm has accounted for all kids in school age.
In some farms schools are provided for the workers children. Some instances the employer will give allowances to the worker for schooling.

Some sectors in Kenya provide schools for workers children. Some companies give allowances for workers children to go to school.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 10:

No legislations on time recording system but various acceptable form of time recording are adopted by employers.

The practice in Kenya is to have biometric and a book/register (normally placed at the entry gate or main gate) where the working hours are recorded.

Auditor will verify that these records can be accessible to the workers.

Biometric time clock systems allow employees to clock in for their work days with only a fingerprint. No punch card or swipe card is necessary. The system automatically records the time the employee came in and left the work place.

Control Point Compliance Criteria 11:

Under the Regulation of Wages (General) Order, subsidiary to the Regulations of Wages and Conditions of Employment Act, the general working hours are 52 per week, but the normal working hours usually consist of 45 hours of work per week, Monday to Friday 8 hours each, 5 hours on Saturday under the special Orders for different sectors subsidiary to the Regulations of Wages and Conditions of Employment Act. Collective agreements may modify the working hours, but generally provide for weekly working hours of 40 up to 52 hours per week.
